

up Who's ↑ for a party?

It's not just the folks in New Orleans, or the Caribbean who know how to party before lent.

The German, Austrians and Swiss had their own pre-lent goings on, and their parties started before the holidays, and finally ended just before Ash Wednesday.

We won't go quite that long, but since we have a lot more Germans than Cajuns in Milwaukee I thought we could maybe change the vernacular so to speak for our annual get together. Sooo...

Fasching Anyone?

If you're interested in a little carnival party German style, join us on Fetter Dienstag (Fat Tuesday), at the Bavarian Bier House in Glendale for some Gumutlichkeit, schnitzel and maybe even some bier.

To all party goers and revelers,

As is tradition in the Germanic regions of the world, the days before Ash Wednesday, (Also known as the Crazy Days), are a party filled time of merriment. This would include ceremonially letting women run government, giving the keys to the city to a fool, and more importantly a masquerade ball.

I absolutely don't want to have any conversations about the first too for this party, so let's just focus on the third; - a masked party of revelry.

Please do your best, and wear your most outrageous masquerade mask on Tuesday. We will be judging your finery, and electing our own King and queen for the evening.

Remember to dress and act accordingly, for the "Crazy Days" of Fasching.

We'll see you at 5:30 for drinks and we'll be starting dinner around 6:30.

Tom & ML
